The main site of activity is the Lebone Centre, which is home to a preschool, an after-care enrichment programme for vulnerable children, and a comprehensive literacy programme.

The Centre is located in a previously disadvantaged area and aims to work in partnership with the relevant communities to address the effects of poverty and help children to maximize their potential. The approach is a holistic one that aims to work in an in-depth way that involves families and all the aspects of a child's life (social, emotional, physical and intellectual), as well as interacting with children along the age spectrum.

The ICDP Trust motto is "because children matter." All the children involved with the Trust are from previously disadvantaged communities and or are classified as 'vulnerable'- meaning that they come from backgrounds of extreme poverty, domestic violence and families affected by HIV/AIDS and extremely low literacy levels.

The latest South African Child Gauge early childhood study released during October this year has found that children in the Eastern Cape are among the most vulnerable, poverty-stricken and hungry in the country. The disturbing statistic shows that 74% of the Eastern Cape's children live in income poverty (parents or care givers having no income).
